NOÉ DUCHAUFOUR-LAWRANCE

While he's best known as the designer of furniture, retail spaces, and special collections for très French brands including Montblanc and Hermès, Noé Duchaufour-Lawrance settled on an East-meets-West theme for his debut collection for the Chinese brand. Belle-Île is named for an island off the coast of Brittany, where he grew up; the sofa's profile embodies the soft curves of the Atlantic peninsula's coastline. Its frame is covered in polyester-linen in colorways vanilla and purple. Other pieces in the collection include a coordinating club chair as well as a bed and sofa inspired by the architecture of cloisters, with positive and negative spaces carved into frames of white ash. "I was intrigued by the proposal of this collaboration between the East and the West. It prompted us to find lines and shapes that are able speak the same language"
